

Newsletter - June 2021

Welcome to my first Newsletter.

I plan to release a Newsletter every month, giving updates about the different events and practice activities that have occurred in the previous month or are planned for the near future. This will give subscribers the opportunity to stay in touch with upcoming events, workshops and other activities for learning and sharing. And it will also give a glimpse into the creative goings on behind the scenes. And at the moment there is quite a bit going on behind the scenes!

A NEW WEBSITE

Over the past few months, I have been working with the team at Papdan.com to redevelop my website. For many of you my new website will be your first introduction to the scope of my work. My previous website was more of an archive of my work. My new website is being developed as a hub – where you can view my work, purchase work, find out what else is happening in my creative practice and, later this year, sign up for online workshops.

The long lockdown in Melbourne in 2020 gave me time to reflect on how I operated my practice. My first big decision from this period of reflection was to embrace technology more and use it to consolidate my practice operations and as a communications interface with the amazing people who support and follow my creative journey.

This Newsletter will be available to subscribe to through the website and will be archived on it as well. The website will be launched in mid-June and after a month or so to settle in to it, I will be starting to develop the first of an online workshop suite that can be accessed through the site. Keep a look out for a couple of free mini-tutorial videos that will appear as the initial workshop offerings. In the meantime, if you have any special requests for workshops, please let me know via the contact form on the website.

A NEW STUDIO

Having had to move house and studio (yet again) and during lockdown, I decided that I needed to put some effort into finding a permanent and customised studio space where I can work uninterrupted, regardless of rental fluctuations and availability. So, I am having a Tiny Studio on Wheels (TSOW) built. I have been thinking about this for a few years now.

Custom made and designed to suit my creative needs, it will be a joy to have a dedicated, purpose-built space in which to create. Even better, I can take it with me wherever I go. Currently in the TC Tiny workshop, with my builder, the talented Tom Coupe, the studio will be delivered around the end of June/early July and then it is one last studio pack up and unpack into my inspirational new space. Here's a sneak peek of the progress. (Image courtesy of Tom Coupe).

Tiny Studio on Wheels
(in progress)

OTHER HAPPENINGS

My new printing press is all set up and working, so keep an eye out for more works with printmaking incorporated into them. And I have a secret project underway – all will be revealed in time.

By my next Newsletter release the website will be launched and I should have taken delivery of my Tiny Studio. Exciting times ahead!

Anzara